John S. Boyden Named legal Council for Utes

With the authorization of the Ute Tribal Business Committee, Salt Lake City lawyer John S. Boyden has been rehired as the legal counsel for the tribe.

Mr. Boyden, whose contract would have expired July 14, is a member of the firm of Boyden, Tibbals, Staten and Croft. A special request from the tribe asks that Mr. Boyden summarize all agreements concerning distribution and use of treaty funds and funds derived from claims.

The attorney has represented the Ute Tribe for 14 years. Partially through his efforts, certain lands in the Uintah Basin were restored to the Ute Tribe. He was instrumental in having the 500.000-acre Uncompahgre extension restored to the tribe.
